Dear Friends and Colleagues,

I am thrilled to welcome you to our upcoming event, where we will gather to explore and discuss critical topics in the field of supervised visitation. This conference promises to be a valuable experience for all attendees, and I wanted to take a moment to emphasize the unique networking opportunities it offers. One of the key benefits of attending this conference is the chance to connect with fellow visitation providers from across the United States, Canada, and beyond. Our event brings together professionals from diverse backgrounds and locations, creating a dynamic environment for networking and collaboration.

We are also excited to be in Savannah, a city known for its rich culture, history, and culinary delights. This beautiful backdrop adds an extra layer of inspiration to our event and provides the perfect setting for networking and learning. We understand that not everyone can make it in person, which is why we offer a virtual option to be as inclusive as possible. While we encourage and value the in-person experience, we want to ensure that those who cannot attend physically can still participate and benefit from the insights and connections this event offers.

Networking provides a platform to learn from the experiences and best practices of your peers, expand your horizons, forge partnerships, find support and encouragement, and stay informed about the latest trends and innovations in visitation services. Our conference is designed to facilitate networking at every turn, from structured sessions to informal gatherings. We encourage you to take full advantage of these opportunities to connect, engage, and build relationships with your fellow visitation providers.

I look forward to seeing you at the event, whether in person or virtually, and I'm confident that the connections you make here will contribute to your professional growth and the success of your organization..

Warm regards,

Joe Nullet
Executive Director

"UNDERSTANDING NEURODIVERSITY FOR SUPERVISED VISITATION PROVIDERS"

Karen Oehme, JD
Lyndi Bradley, LMSW
Institute for Family Violence Studies
Florida State University

Non-Conference Attendees can register to attend virtually

This workshop will provide an important introduction to neurodivergence for supervised visitation professionals. The workshop will explain why it's important for supervised visitation professionals to understand the impact of a neurodivergent diagnosis or behavior on children and families. Professionals will learn about different neurodevelopmental conditions and the challenges affected children face. Additionally, professionals will learn how a child's neurodiversity can impact parenting and family relationships. This workshop will also give professionals insight into the important role they can play. We will explore strategies for understanding, supporting, and improving access and delivery of quality services for neurodiverse children.

LILLIAN GRANT-BAPTISTE: SVN'S FEATURED MASTER STORYTELLER & CELEBRANT

Lillian Grant-Baptiste is an informed cultural artist, motivational speaker, and uplifting storyteller. WORKSHOPS

DAY 1

WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 2024

WORKSHOP SESSION A

Invisible Injuries: Traumatic Brain Injuries, Strangulation, and Domestic Violence

Rachel Ramirez
Ohio Domestic Violence Network

Most people associate concussions with football, other sports, and military service. But how could our services transform if we were to consider the brain injury from violence that is impacting a person's ability to successfully participate in our services every day? Come to start the conversation about the impact of brain injury on survivors of violence, and how increasing awareness of brain injury can help you provide more empowering and trauma-informed services. We will discuss a framework developed in Ohio and share free, easy-to-use tools to help you better serve people impacted by violence and brain injury.

Facing Client Death: Emotions & Ethics

Monica Urbaniak, LMFT-S
Urbaniak Wellness

For many helping professionals, considering the death of a client brings with it a myriad of reactions. In this interactive session, participants will have the opportunity to engage with what is likely an experience many will have in their careers. Taking the time to explore our own emotions and fears, identify the parameters of our roles, and learn about grieving ethically can help us to better navigate this area of client and staff care. We will explore concepts of loss, grief, and bereavement, as well as how vicarious trauma can impact how we care for clients and each other in the wake of a client's death.

The Power of Showing Up

Chrystal Fischer
Parenting With Grace
with panelists Lori Wymore-Kirkland & Emilyn Wahl

There is such power in being present. Learn how to be present in your community as a sustainable way of building awareness and support for your services. Walk in the steps of Parenting With Grace (PWG) while Chrystal Fischer, Founder, and Executive Director, explains how she conceptualized, located, and remodeled a supervised visitation center in their community.

Teens and Technology- What Pros Need to Know

Steven Bradley
Our Family Wizard

Today's youth use technology for nearly all interactions: communication, education, and entertainment. As visitation, child welfare, and family law professionals working with families in conflict, you have a responsibility to understand how technology is being used in these cases, especially involving children. In this interactive workshop, Steven Bradley will demonstrate technologies that are being used by our youth to cause harm, harass, and threaten others. He will explore smart phone technology, location applications, and commonly and uncommonly used social networking sites.

DAY 2

THURSDAY, MAY 16, 2024
WORKSHOP SESSION B

What's Engagement Got to Do With It?

Laura Orlando, MSW
The University of Washington, Partners for Our Children

Given that most parents do not willingly place their children into out-of-home care, they are typically mandated or ordered to participate in services. Additionally, having a child removed by child protective services can cause parents to be viewed as perpetrators, despite their histories of victimization. This makes them "involuntary" participants or clients, which can cause them to merely comply with services versus truly engage with them. As a family time supervisor, supporting parents to engage in family time can help to improve the quality of the experience for the parents, their children, and you. In this workshop you will learn about the concept of engagement or "the positive involvement in a helping process", why engagement matters with parents, as well as some strategies to support parental engagement in the context of family time.

Community Reflections: Building Partnerships for Success

Valya Roberts
Beth Pearson
Dalhousie Place

Spend this workshop learning how to create meaningful partnerships within the community to create a successful Supervised Parenting/Access Centre. Learn from seasoned professionals with over 50 years of experience. The research provided will prove that building partnerships is a very necessary step for maintaining a safe service. Learn how to create community protocols for partnerships with DV providers, police, and others. Learn how to connect with different cultural groups and the importance of having a staff team that reflects your community. Learn how to promote your agency, develop press releases, and other promotional ideas. You will leave this workshop with all the tools to build successful partnerships in your community.

Case Study: The Impact of Observations Notes

Hera McLeod

Joe Nullet, CAE

Supervised Visitation Network

Providers of supervised visitation are typically tasked with objectively reporting their observations of what happens during visits between non-custodial parents and their children. Using a case example when flawed documentation was also misused, this workshop explores the implications of the who, what, where, when, and why of what we capture in the reports we write.

Stalking and Supervised Visitation: How to Recognize and Respond to Promote Safety

Jennifer Landhuis, MS

Stalking Prevention, Awareness, & Resource Center

Supervised visitation centers promote safety and security for those engaging in services, but what happens if a participant is using this setting to perpetuate a cycle of abuse and control through stalking behaviors? Stalking is an underrecognized victimization, particularly in intimate partner relationships that have ended, and visitation centers must be prepared to recognize and respond to this potentially lethal behavior. Join the experts with the Stalking, Prevention, and Resource Center to learn how to equip your visitation center with the information and resources to promote safety and security for all.

DAY 2

THURSDAY, MAY 16, 2024

WORKSHOP SESSION C

Turning Hearts: Fostering Authentic Father Engagement and Transformative Provider Relationships

Shon Hart

InvolvedDad

In an era of ever-changing family dynamics, how can we actively turn the hearts of fathers back to their children, and reorient service providers' focus to genuinely meet families' needs? Join us for an electrifying session that promises more than just theory—it's about initiating change on a monumental scale. Led by the renowned author and Executive Director of InvolvedDad and Family Matters, this workshop integrates groundbreaking insights from the book "Broken Boys Become Broken Men" into actionable strategies for transformative impact. Attendees will walk away with a revolutionary "Turning Hearts" framework guide, tangible tools to re-engage fathers, and a roadmap for scaling change in supervised visitation and beyond. Don't miss this game-changing approach to modern fatherhood and service provision. Unlock the potential to turn hearts and transform lives.

Tough Conversations with Staff

Jen Johnson
Harmony Visitation Center

Have you ever had an employee that just borders on the edge of a write-up, but never really crosses over? Or the employee that does a great job and then suddenly loses all motivation? How about the employee who thinks they are “excellent” at everything when really they are just doing the basics of the job? This session will cover how to have those tough conversations with staff and what you as a supervisor should be documenting. We will cover developing and implementing improvement plans and when to take someone off one. We will discuss the importance of an annual review. We will round out this session with a case review that provides the participants with the opportunity to practice what we have discussed.

Loving and Learning with Parenting Education

Emilyn Wahl
Someplace Safe
Lori Wymore-Kirkland
Stronger Together Supervised Visitation and Exchange Center

A growing trend in supervised visitation services is centered around establishing a program that offers parent education in addition to visitation services. The biggest challenge is implementation. Education opportunities can improve outcomes for the family once they transition out of services. Join Emilyn Wahl and Lori Wymore-Kirkland for a presentation that will identify how service providers can successfully implement educational coaching. We will review simple strategies that allowed our programs in Minnesota and Virginia to incorporate educational support into services while creating sustainability. We will discuss learning hooks and adult learning style and will review a few curriculums and look at tools available that enhance any curriculum.

Coming and Goings Exercise: Understanding Domestic Violence Dynamics

The Honorable Judge Victor Reyes
Mahakaruna Holistic Foundation

This exercise will focus on barriers to safety for victims and will enhance participants' understanding of the multi-faceted considerations that accompany a victim's decision to remain in an abusive relationship. We develop many judgments about people's decision-making that are filtered through our mindset and experiences. Being less judgmental of people's decisions may enable us to offer resources and provide better services if we understand the whys of decisions and not the decisions themselves

DAY 3

FRIDAY, MAY 17, 2024
WORKSHOP SESSION D

Not Just for Snowstorms: Exploring the Use of Supervised Virtual Visitation Post-Pandemic

Dr. Michael Saini

University of Toronto: Faculty of Social Work Factor-Inwentash

Daniella Bozur

YWCA Hamilton

Join us for an insightful workshop that delves into the untapped benefits of providing virtual supervised parenting services. As the world adapted during the pandemic, many service providers embraced virtual supervision as part of their modified approach. However, as restrictions lifted, a return to traditional models became commonplace, with virtual services reserved primarily for emergencies like snowstorms.

The Executive Director & Board Chair Partnership

Aileen Gabbey

Productive Nonprofits

Working in the Child Welfare system is uniquely challenging. We are tasked to help, to understand, advocate, and to support families at critical junctures when they have experienced or caused incredible trauma. This session engages participants in the process of acknowledging the pain and growth of such work by exploring the impact of the work on the helper and how we cope. We will dig into the complexity of the work and its effect on helpers addressing our strong reactions and how to use them to strengthen the work with clients. We will address traumatic stress and post-traumatic growth and the parallel process that occurs through helping others in their most desperate times of need.

Serving Survivors with Disabilities

Sandra Harrell

Activating Change

People with disabilities and Deaf people experience victimization at alarming rates: 3 - 5 times higher than people without disabilities. Yet, the vast majority of people with disabilities never receive services to support healing from trauma due to systemic barriers in victim services and disability services. Unfortunately, through no fault of their own, people with disabilities are less likely to receive services that increase their safety and support their healing. The barriers are even greater for people with disabilities and Deaf people from communities of color and other marginalized communities. Join us while we explore meeting the needs of survivors living with disabilities.

What Comes Next? Supporting Families Making the Transition Out of Supervised Contacts

Howard Yaffe, LICSW

Riverside Community Care- Meeting Place

Lori Wymore-Kirkland

Stronger Together Supervised Visitation and Exchange Center

We will examine and discuss the increased need to support parents as they follow court orders for supervised exchanges, either as a starting point for parent/child contacts or as a transition from fully supervised visits. Recent tragedies will be reviewed that highlight the need for these exchanges to be done by professionals. Additional "Transitional Services" will be presented that parenting time professions can provide families as they make the move towards unsupervised parent/child contacts. Well-established policies and procedures will be presented to enhance each participant's ability to implement and enhance their services to provide the safest, smoothest, and most supportive, supervised exchanges for each child and each parent we work with. Case scenarios will be examined to problem-solve issues such as how to support a reluctant child, what belongings can travel with the children back and forth, how to handle emergencies during visits, and what will be communicated between parents before, during, and after visits.

WELCOME TO SAVANNAH!

Savannah, Georgia, is a charming Southern escape where art, period architecture, trendy boutiques, and haunted stories are all set under a veil of Spanish moss. Savannah is where exemplary cuisine comes straight from the coast and refreshing cocktails are served at every meal.

Come and discover the enchanting soul of Savannah consistently named one of the “world’s friendliest cities” by Condé Nast Traveler readers, this coastal town has a world-class reputation for hospitality and grace.

Whether your ideal pace is strolling around the famous Forsyth fountain or a wild night of cabaret and karaoke, Savannah provides the perfect playground.

History buffs swarm Savannah, taking in the rich, significant sites like Old Fort Jackson, Fort Pulaski National Monument, and Bonaventure Cemetery.

Fashionistas comb Broughton Street for high-end designs.

Foodies crave specialties in gourmet shops.

Art lovers enjoy the renowned Telfair Academy and the SCAD Museum of Art as well as an eclectic variety of art galleries and home decor shops.

Just 18 miles from Savannah, discover the beaches of Tybee Island and explore warm, sandy shores perfect for fishing, swimming and just lounging in the sun. The picturesque beauty of Georgia’s coast is waiting for you to enjoy. Spend the day searching for shells along the water’s edge or local marine life in the tidal pools and rock features.

Savannah has a lot of historical and tourist attractions, but on Thursday night, we will whisk you away to The Real Savannah, the Savannah the locals love. Your adventure starts with a free SVN trolley ride from the DeSoto Hotel to the Starland Yard District on the Old Town Trolley! Ride in style to this quaint neighborhood and dine, shop, and drink with your fellow conference attendees.

Starland Yard offers various rotating food trucks each week, hosts Vittoria Pizzeria where renowned Chef Kyle Jacovino slings Neapolitan pies, and is home to the Yard Bar for beer, wine, cocktails, and frozen drinks.

They curate special events featuring local music, art, and culture weekly. The Yard is a family-friendly, safe, and fun option for people who might not agree on what to eat or drink, but agree they're looking for a good time together.

We will meet up that evening for a group photo--a free SVN giveaway item will be included in this one-of-a-kind photo op!

WANT TO CONTINUE THE FUN?

You have the option to add the private SVN improv show with the troop at the Front Porch Improv to your evening for just $10.

Space is limited to the first 120 to register!
